PREMIER BACK, FACES CRITICS

Makes Quick reappearance
In London After Washington Parleys

LONDON, June 27.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill came back to England today from his historic conferences with President Roosevelt and stepped from a trans-Atlantic plane into the most serious political crisis of his career. He returned to a nation troubled by the serious setback to British forces in North Africa and the imminent Axis smash at Tobruk. The longheld British stronghold at Tobruk fell while the prime minister was discussing war strategy with President Roosevelt and the capture of some 25,000 British troops there brought strong criticism of his conduct of the war.

Facing him in the house of commons is an insurgent motion for a vote of "no confidence" in his direction of the war.

Political observers believe the prime minister will win a vote of confidence—as he has before—with some 20 votes cast against him and a number abstaining from the vote.

All observers agreed that Churchill, with the strategy mapped in Washington fresh in his mind, would respond to his critics in a fighting mood.

Although the prime minister's early return had been expected, his reappearance so soon after the official announcement of his meeting with congressional leaders and the Pacific war council in Washington Thursday was surprising.

Repeating Thursday to a question in commons as to whether Churchill would return in time to deal with the "no confidence" motion introduced by Sir John Wadsworth, 18 other members, Sir Stafford Cripps, house leader, said merely that he hoped that would be possible.

The debate is scheduled for the second and third days of the next series of sittings.

HINT MOVE TO DIVERT NAZIS

Roosevelt, Churchill Issue Statement On "Operations"

WASHINGTON, June 27.—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain declared in a joint statement today that "combined operations" of the United Nations "will divert the German strength from the attack on Russia."

"While exact plans, for obvious reasons, can not be disclosed," said the joint statement released simultaneously in Washington and London, "it can be said that the combined operations, which were discussed in detail at our Washington conference between ourselves and our respective military advisers, will divert German strength from the attack on Russia."

The statement also said it was hoped that as a result of other steps "planned" at the week of Roosevelt-Churchill conferences concluded Thursday, "the respective navies will further reduce the toll of merchant shipping."

MAYHEW IS CHIEF AT DISPOSAL PLANT

John William Mayhew of 208 Jennings ave. has been appointed by Service Director Frank Wilson as chief operator of the Salem sewage treatment plant, succeeding Robert S. Howell who has resigned. REGISTERED SHOOT SCHEDULED SUNDAY

The Salem Gun club will hold its first registered shoot of the season at the Salem Country club tomorrow with competition beginning at 1 p. m.

Shooters from Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania are expected to enter the event in quest of a $25 war bond which will go to the high man.

The shoot will be run under the Zwerner classification and trophy division. This type of classification gives shooters of all classes an equal chance since it provides for a fair system of handicapping.

NAZIS BUILD COAST FORTS

May Seize All France In Preparation For Invasion Threat

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, June 27.—German military leaders are urging Adolf Hitler to occupy all France to meet the growing threat of an Allied attempt to establish a second front in western Europe, an unusually well-informed foreign source declared today.

At the same time the independent French News agency at Beirut reported that 500,000 Italian soldiers were concentrated in northern Italy ready to move into France to reinforce the German army of occupation.

Underground Channels Report
Intimation the Nazis might be preparing to take over the third of conquered France which still is unoccupied was said to have come through "trustworthy underground channels"—the same channels which recently reported that the Germans were moving heavy guns from the Maginot and Siegfried lines to the French west coast.

The source credited with relaying this information also said he had been informed more than 1,000,000 French residents have been evacuated from the coastal areas in connection with the German defense preparations.

The area between Boulogne and Dieppe, he said, "has been particularly well-cleared by the Nazis of everybody suspected of being likely to aid Allied invaders."

The same source asserted there was a possibility that Hitler might recall General Johannes Blaskowitz—hero of the Polish campaign who has been in virtual retirement since reportedly disagreeing with the fuhrer over the invasion of Russia—to assist in reorganizing the defenses of western Europe.

Shakeup Is Reported
In line with this reorganization Hitler was said to have replaced 26 German divisional commanders within the last three or four weeks in a drastic shakeup.

The source warned, however, that all these reported developments should not be considered a sign of weakness on the part of the Germans at the present stage.

"They should be taken for the present for just what they are—evidence of German preparedness which the Allies must be equipped to overcome if and when they invade," he said.

MOTOR FORCES MAKE CONTACT WITH MATRUH

Enemy Advance Units Reach British "Last Ditch" Stronghold

NO MAJOR BATTLES FOUGHT YESTERDAY

American - Built Torpedo Craft Augment British Fleet

CAIRO, June 27.—British headquarters reported today that Axis forces of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had moved up to within 15 miles of Matruh, about 115 miles from Egypt from the Libyan frontier.

(A Rome broadcast quoting the Italian high command said today Italian and German motorized forces in Egypt "have made contact with the defenses of Matruh.")

The position of Axis armored divisions indicated a 15-mile advance along the coast toward Matruh, restricted only by light parrying action of British mobile forces.

"There was no major engagement yesterday," a communique said. "Our covering forces were in contact with the enemy's forward troops throughout the day."

Rommel Slows Down
The advance of Rommel's armored and motorized troops, concentrated along a five-mile front, was slow by comparison with his earlier drives of from 40 to 60 miles a day, indicating he might be awaiting the arrival of fresh supplies before starting an all-out attack.

Hammering of major Libyan bases by British and United States army air force bombers and strafing of German-Italian columns hindered the movement of food, water, oil and munitions necessary to maintain the invading field army.

Moreover it was announced in Alexandria, less than 200 miles behind the defense lines of Lieut. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie's Eighth army, that speedy American-built motor torpedo boats had arrived to augment the British fleet.

Capable of a speed of more than 45 knots, the craft are already credited with sinking three Axis vessels off Libya and removing several hundred British soldiers and sailors from Tobruk under heavy bombardment just before that port fell last Sunday.

British Warships Ready
British warships are standing by for orders to steam out and engage coastal formations from the sea.

The main invasion force was made up of three armored divisions supported by motorized infantry and the initiative was clearly still in their hands.

Military observers said they had three possible courses:

1—A frontal attack on Matruh, a fortified port linked to Alexandria by rail as well as sea supply lines.
2—An attempt to negotiate the hill-rimmed salt and sand marshes of the vast Quattara depression, farther inland.
3—to swing south toward the Nile by way of the Siwa oasis.

Women Capable of Handling 80 Per Cent of War Output

Women In Industry Next Year Will Reach Scale Beyond Anything Ever Experienced In U. S.

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, June 27.—War industries can employ successfully at least 80 per cent women, and this new class of industrial workers will be absorbed into essential civilian and arms plants in unbelievable numbers, a social security board member declared today.

"There is every reason to believe that early in 1943 women workers will be going into industry on a scale far beyond anything we have ever experienced in this country," Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward of Washington told the American Federation of Sceptomists clubs.

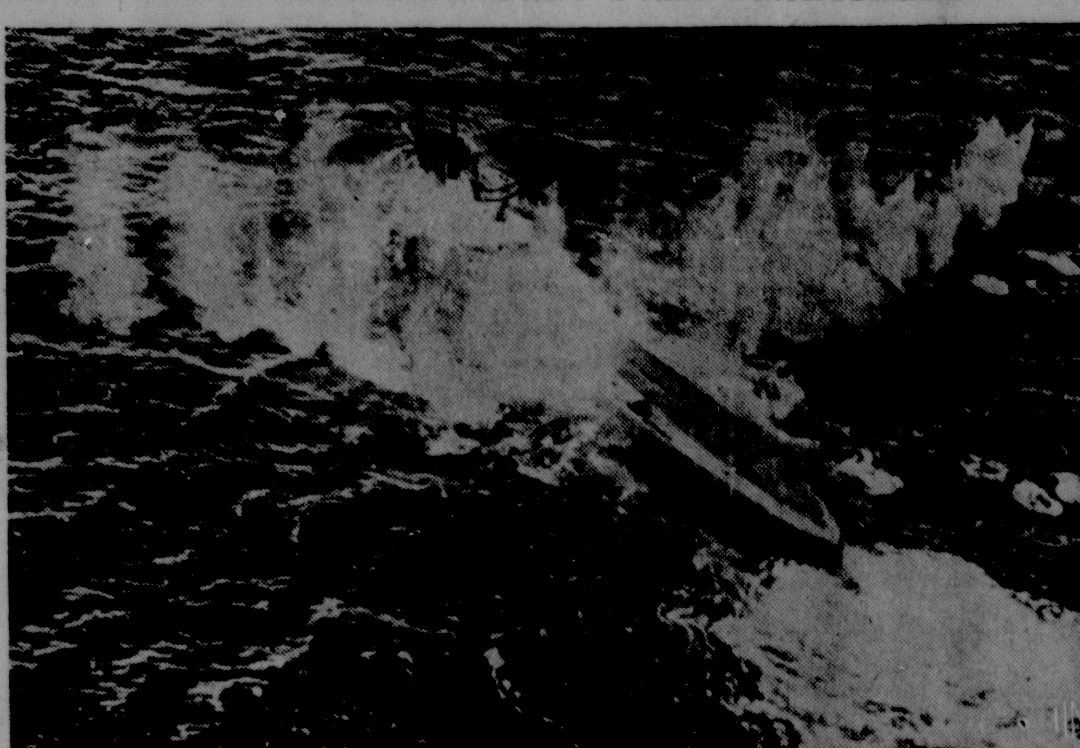

America's single women and the married ones who need not tend children constitute the nation's biggest and most important reserve labor force, she said, adding:

"One of the very important reasons for the greater employment of women, particularly in areas of labor shortage, is that hiring women already living in the community reduces the need of bringing in large numbers of men workers and their families. This helps to prevent needless migration and further congestion of already overcrowded war industry centers and thus relieves housing shortages, transportation difficulties, and overburdened school facilities."

Referring to a U. S. Employment Service study of 2,000 jobs in 21 key war industries, Mrs. Woodward said this indicated fully 80 per cent women could be successfully employed after relatively brief training.

In Britain, she said, women are doing half the work in many aircraft engine plants, and it has been officially stated they could handle as much as 80 per cent. Even in the tank industry—until now almost entirely a man's job—40 per cent of British workers are women.

Pine Machine Guns Nazi Rattlesnake

This German submarine, caught in the Bay of Biscay by a British Sunderland flying boat of the RAF Coastal Command, undergoes heavy machine-gun fire. The U-boat, en route to the Atlantic was forced to the surface by bombs dropped from the plane. When the bombs were exhausted, the fliers used machine-gun fire. Result, the U-boat fled, half submerged, leaving a trail of oil on the water.

YANKS PREPARING TO RAID GERMANY

U. S. Air Force Units Lay Groundwork For Mass Bomb Raids

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, June 27.—It was reliably disclosed today that United States army air force units are in the British Isles laying the groundwork for American participation in the mass raids on Germany.

Nothing has yet been said to indicate that aircraft have arrived to equip the units for actual operations.

Precedent indicates that the first public announcement of United States participation in the European war warfare will be by the blast of bombs on Germany.

The first official hint of the U. S. air crews' presence in Britain was given Thursday in a statement by Maj. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, American commander for the European war theater, that pilots were arriving "in rapidly increasing numbers."

Well-informed air observers had known for weeks that air crews were taking shape at a base somewhere in the British Isles, but security reasons prevented disclosure.

The nature and extent of the preparations for operation of American fliers and aircraft in the big assaults on German war industry still are secrets.

It has been stated, however, that United States officers will operate independently of the RAF, although collaborating with it in a long-range bombing plan.

Soldier "Send-Off" Fund Aided by Boys

Kenneth Burrier of 515 Franklin st. and Dusan Sobek of 477 S. Broadway are truly patriotic.

The boys, both eight years old, on two occasions, have gone from house to house and solicited scrap rubber which they sold and then, instead of keeping the money for themselves, turned it over to Joe Kelley for the soldiers' "Send-Off" fund.

On each occasion they collected 178 pounds of the rubber, their total "profit" being $3.56.

Kelley announced that the Mullins Mig. Corp. had turned over to the "Send-Off" association a check for $20, proceeds from the sale of 2,000 pounds of scrap rubber which it gleaned from its Salem plant.

PLANT INSPECTORS ATTEND MEETINGS

Motion pictures for educational purposes also will be shown. D. P. Moyser, Cleveland ordinance district representative here announced.

The canning season for cherries is now in full swing in most of the state, and part of the strawberry crop remains to be canned in the northern section of the state.

A leaflet issued by the consumers division of the OPA urges that no fruit be permitted to go to waste this year because food is a weapon of war. It was pointed out that every jar of home-canned fruit

POLO CLUB TO HOLD ANNUAL HORSE SHOW

At a banquet held by the Salem Polo club at the Elks lodge last night, preliminary plans for a horse show to be held late this summer were discussed. The exact date was not announced. Earl Grate and Jack Gellatin were chosen to provide for intermission entertainment for remaining games on the schedule.

Despite all efforts to schedule a game for Sunday, the Polo club was unsuccessful and there are no plans to play this weekend. However, the locals will meet Zellenople July 4 and July 5 on the Salem field on the Ellsworth road.

This game was scheduled two weeks ago but was rained out at that time. The Pennsylvanians have placed the only blot on the Salem team's otherwise unblemished slate. They are the possessors of an overwhelming 10-3 win scored over the locals a few weeks ago in the Keystone state.

NAZI ATTACK SLOWED DOWN, MOSCOW SAYS

Russians, Counter-Driving, Throw Back Foe Near Kupyansk

FIGHTING BLOODY IN CRIMEA SECTOR

Germans Use 50 Trainloads of Ammunition Against Sevastopol

(By Associated Press)
MOSCOW, June 27.—The Red army has checked the new German offensive in the Ukraine, repulsing enemy attacks east of Kupyansk and at one point counterattacking, while the German gains on the Sevastopol front are measured in yards after the bloodiest kind of fighting, Soviet military dispatches said today.

Severe losses were inflicted on the Germans who were forced into retreat by the Russian counter-drive at Kupyansk on the Oskol river 60 miles southeast of Kharkov, the reports said.

50 Trainloads of Ammunition
At Sevastopol, the Red fleet navy base in the Crimea, the Germans were estimated to have hurled 50 trainloads of bombs, shells and mines into an effort to breach the defenses, but their gains were said to have netted them only a few dozen yards in two sectors.

A Sevastopol report to Pravda, the Communist "party" organ, said the Germans continued to move up reserves and "the presence of several new infantry regiments suddenly transferred from another front has been noted in the last few days."

At the same time it was declared that assault groups there had dwindled from regiments or whole divisions to companies and battalions, an evidence of the strain of the campaign upon his Axis manpower.

Nazis Claim Izum
The German high command announced last night that Nazi and Rumanian troops had captured Izum, a railroad town on the west bank of the Donets river 70 miles southeast of Kharkov. German control of the whole triangular area between Kharkov, Izum and newly-occupied Kupyansk was implied.

Large Nazi reserves of tanks and infantry were said to have been thrown into the conflict against the reinforced Russians.

As the result of fierce battles, populated places are continually changing hands," the Soviet information bureau said. "We are inflicting heavy losses."

(A Berlin broadcast said Red army defenses were strong and intricate, this being coupled with a statement that the high command considered the attacks, "aimed at shortening the front line, a full success.")

DON'T OPEN TILL NOVEMBER

For all practical purposes the tax bill prepared by the house ways and means committee calls for six billion dollars, about two thirds of the amount the treasury said it hoped the bill would raise. The missing third will have to be borrowed. The total shortage, expected to reach 40 billion dollars, will have to be borrowed. It must be borne in mind that the new tax bill is merely for additional revenue; all the old taxes are still in force.

There is a very serious question about the government's ability to borrow 40 billion dollars—probably more because revenue estimates always are too high and deficit estimates too low. Anything that would reduce the borrowing total and increase the revenue total would be a contribution to financial stability. There is no argument on the point. There is only politics.

All reliable reports from Washington say that congressmen are aware of two things—the elections next November and the cost of the war. Greater of these is the elections. On the tried and true theory that the way to get elected is to seem to give voters more for less, political candidates are willing to hoist the cost of the war into the upsteeen billions (220 at last count) but are wholly unwilling to remind voters that all this must be paid for.

MR. CHURCHILL'S NEXT MOVE

What appears to Americans to be an unfair attack on Prime Minister Churchill for British failure in Libya is only the normal operation of parliamentary government, of course. The ultimate effect is bound to be salutary, on the assumption that almost anything in Britain's war management would be better than what it has been getting.

It is the theory of parliamentary government, fully accepted by Mr. Churchill himself, that the head of the government and his cabinet shall be held responsible for what goes on. That is how Mr. Churchill got to be prime minister—when Mr. Chamberlain made a dismal failure.

It is the parliamentary method of translating popular opinion into political action. Theoretically, the United States accomplishes the same thing by recurrent elections, though actually the British plan is a far greater concession to popular government than would be possible here. President Roosevelt, for instance, could make amends for the lack of preparation to face Japan's attack last Dec. 7 by dismissing a handful of professional militarists. Mr. Churchill under the same circumstances would have been forced to submit his government to a vote of confidence, in addition to ordering changes in personnel.

His next move, in fact, will be that very thing—a vote of confidence and a reorganization of personnel. Perhaps nothing will be gained; the United Nations may not be able to find a Rommel in a carload of generals. But their only chance is to keep looking, and they shouldn't forget that Adolf Hitler discarded a lot of them too before he found the handful who have carried out his ambitious strategy.

RICHEST NATION ON EARTH

Donald M. Nelson's hint that scrap iron and steel needed for war production may have to be obtained in the form of fences, ornamental iron work and statuary will sharpen the war focus of Americans who remember what they thought when they heard that Germany was doing the same thing years ago.

This richest nation on earth is searching desperately for rubber, too. It has rationed sugar. In the near future it will begin to conserve fats, another acute shortage in Germany during the years when the Nazis were preparing for war. If anyone thought its wealth would keep the United States from feeling the pinch of war, these growing shortages should dispel the illusion.

There is no country wealthy enough to fight modern war without the most extreme sacrifices. That was proved beyond doubt in World War I, which left all participants with a sense of waste and futility. It will be proved again in World War II—perhaps conclusively this time.

UNDRESS BECOMES RELATIVE

That hardy hot weather topic of long standing, the scanty beach suit, has added a new angle, or perhaps a curve. Mayor LaGuardia of New York City, confronted with protests from property owners, has handed down an opinion that within 200 feet of a bathing beach a bathing suit is permissible. Further than that, it is, well, er, ahem, offensive. The mayor recommends that in such cases police should be notified and should "fan" violators all the way to the nearest station house.

It is easy to imagine as years ago on and one thing leads to another that the 200 feet might be extended to 2,000 and so on until at long last, when the human eye has learned not to blink, a person attired as though for bathing might roam at large. It is easy to imagine this because already young women and some not so young—and even some young men—may be seen strolling, riding bicycles, playing tennis and just idling away the hours in garments that a few years ago would have suggested an emergency and produced offers of a bathrobe. And the garments have nothing whatever to do with bathing, not even nominally. They're just garments.

CLENDENING DISCUSSES SCIATICA

Modern Research Reveals Causes of Many Cases

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE OF the fascinating things about modern medical research is that something may be discovered which looks like a very rare and unusual condition and after investigation it turns out that it throws a great deal of light on some old and common condition.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Sciatica, or neuralgia of the sciatic nerve, is certainly one of the oldest of human complaints. The medical profession had about given up expecting to find anything new about it and, lo and behold, recently a condition was discovered which probably explains 75 per cent of all cases of sciatica.

The sciatic nerve is given off from the lower part of the spinal cord, emerges from the openings between the lower vertebrae, goes down over the sacro-iliac joint and comes out into the leg about near the bone that you sit on and is distributed to the back part of the leg and calf. When it begins to ache—the condition which we call sciatica—it comes about as excruciating discomfort as anything that can happen. Medical men have ascribed the cause of sciatica to inflammation or injury of the nerve everywhere along its course from sacro-iliac strain to impingement on the nerve in the sitting posture, to focal infection, and so forth and so on.

Not long ago, in fact as short a time ago as 1934, some surgeons found that slight injuries would cause a peculiar condition in the vertebral column. The bodies of the vertebrae are separated by a cartilaginous cushion in the middle of which is a soft globule of tissue called the nucleus pulposus.

This nucleus pulposus gets pushed around with considerable ease and can be herniated out between the vertebrae, causing pressure on the spinal nerve roots.

Once Considered Rare

At first this was considered to be quite rare but in the time that has intervened it is found more and more often as diagnostic thought has become more alert; doctors have been taught to look for it. Furthermore, a great many cases of low back pain and sciatica have been found to be due to this cause. When seen at operation, the nucleus pulposus is sticking out between the vertebrae and stretching the roots of the sciatic nerve so that it is evident to any observer that it is causing severe pain.

As I said above, some neurosurgeons believe that this causes sciatica in as much as 75 to 80 per cent of all cases. The condition can be relieved by very simple surgical procedures which remove the protruding nucleus pulposus and take the strain off the roots of the sciatic nerve.

Of course, it is advisable to try every form of conservative treatment first, such as resting the patient in a plaster cast, manipulation, injection of the nerve and taking plenty of time before trying surgery. In order to prove definitely whether sciatica is due to herniated nucleus pulposus it is possible to visualize it with properly planned x-ray studies.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. A.:—What is meant by the loss of a reflex and what bad symptoms or pains does it cause?

Answer: A reflex is a subconscious impulse that goes through the nervous system, starting as a sensory impulse and coming out as a motor impulse. For instance, if you touch something red hot without warning, you pull your hand away; that is a reflex. The sensation of heat and burning makes the muscles move. A reflex is lost whenever the nervous are interrupted. This may be due to neuritis either in the sensory or motor nerves or a destruction of some part of the spinal cord. Loss of a reflex is not in itself associated with pain although some of the diseases in which reflexes are lost have pains as part of their symptomatology.

Z. B.:—What is a deviated septum? How can it be corrected? Does it cause a drainage from the back part of the throat?

Answer: A deviated septum is a deformity of the bone in the middle of the nose which separates the two nostrils. By pressing against the opening of the sinuses on one side, it causes these secretions to be dammed back and this allows easy infection of the sinus. It will cause drainage into the back of the throat as you describe.

Services In Our Churches

Emmanuel Lutheran Church Announces Sunday's Service

Rev. John Bauman will speak on the topic, "The Secret of Unanswered Prayer," tomorrow at the divine worship service of the Emmanuel Lutheran church. His text will be taken from the book of Psalms, 66:18, "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me." Prayer is a golden river at whose brink some die of thirst while others kneel and pray.

The Sunday school will meet at 9 a. m. with classes for all ages while the pastor's Bible class will gather at 9:15 in charge of Lee Schaefer, superintendent.

The Quest For Security
Security! Nations seek it, have sought for it. When Clemenceau presented his demand to the Big Four at the Paris peace conference in 1919 they were summed up as "Security for France." For her security France built the Maginot line. Where is the security of France in 1942? The League of Nations was an attempt at collective security for Europe. For the security of Europe the Locarno pact was adopted in 1925. Where is the security in Europe today?

As nations, so people have been seeking security. The Social Security Act by its name points to one kind of security the people of our beloved land want. Insurance companies sell their policies as "security for the future." Security for today, security for tomorrow.

Everything on earth is insecure, transitory. Change is a law of history. Today is but a period of transition between yesterday and tomorrow. The history of the world is the record of transition between eternities. This makes man feel insecure.

But in the midst of change and decay there is One who does not change. "Thou art the same and Thy years shall not fail." We look to Him as the Rock of Ages, immutable and immovable.

The Sunday school will meet at 9:45 a. m., using as its topic "Alcohol Facts Versus Drinking Propaganda." The text is taken from Isaiah 5:20-23.

"The call goes out that every possible effort be given that the strength of the nation be directed into the channel of defense. Many church groups have taken action that the liquor interests be called upon to make sacrifices in these times. Grain and sugar are greatly needed in this battle for our very existence. Objections are made about the nearness of drinking places to the army camps. The Christian Herald makes mention of the fact that rubber is refused for tires to deliver milk to the homes, even if the baby must have this milk, yet beer trucks and whiskey trucks have first priorities on tires to deliver their goods. The churches as they study this temperance lesson have the right to demand that no liquor interests should have any special rights in these days of stress and strain. The voices of the Christian people have a right to demand that this issue be fairly settled."

Glass Industries Thrive As War Curtails Others

NEW YORK, June 27.—The war has been kind to three of the four types of glassmakers. They are up to their ears in work and the raw materials they need are plentiful.

They have a main hope: That the business the war has brought them will continue after peace.

Eased by the war are the makers of fiber, tableware and container glass.

Fiber glass makers easily turned from peace to war production. Tableware makers now have no foreign competition. The makers of glass containers are watching their product take the place of many rival tin cans.

But a fourth type, flatglass makers, saw a big chunk of their market disappear because they made glass for buildings and new automobiles and when war came the former was curtailed and the latter stopped.

A spokesman for one of the largest flatglass makers, explaining how his firm is seeking new outlets, cheerfully said:

"Now we are promoting mirrors and window-conditioning."

"I everybody in the United States," he went on, put in window-conditioning it would mean the saving of coal and fuel oil equal to a trainload 2,500 miles long.

Raw Materials Plentiful

Unlike other industries cramped or shut down for lack of raw materials needed more directly for war purposes, glass has not suffered for lack of its ingredients: Sand, lime, soda ash, and the oxides which give color.

The fiberglass makers swung over from the peacetime manufacture of glass thread and insulation for homes, refrigerators and stoves to war production of insulation for ships, aircraft and windings for wires and cables.

Tin had long been the rival of glass for first place on the shelves of the nation's groceries. When the Japanese shut off the East Indian tin supply, glass began to move up to the head of the class.

There are glass containers now for more than 400 brands of coffee and hundreds of other items from fruits to vegetables.

Glass containers, the makers hope, will retain their place on the nation's store shelves after the war. They are going to try to give tin a battle for first place.

The tableware manufacturers have their field to themselves with foreign competition about out of the picture.

Sheriff George Hayes of Columbiana county was instrumental in bringing to a halt the "grand tour" of two make-believe RAF "heroes" who spent two enjoyable weeks in the United States before anyone could prove they were a couple of deserters.

Sheriff Hayes remembered having seen the boys in a Youngstown restaurant Sunday night as he read an immigration message of their disappearance from an RAF camp in Nova Scotia. He immediately telephoned Charles Garfinkle of the Pittsburgh immigration office. Garfinkle, in turn, contacted Youngstown authorities and it was not long afterwards that the RAF "heroes" were in custody.

Up to the minute that Youngstown police nabbed them, the pair, John E. Garner, and Isbryn Llewellyn Jenkins, were living off the fat of the land and telling of their "experiences" bombing Germany.

They were arrested yesterday while guests of a Youngstown resident who "fell for" their line, engaging smiles and natty appearance. Now they face court martial in Nova Scotia.

Officers of the RAF camp in Nova Scotia, from which they deserted two months ago, are enroute to pick them up, along with Alfred Dawson and Reginald Thompson, their pals, who were caught in Harrisburg, Pa., Wednesday.

The slogan, "Pike's Peak or bust," originated in 1859 with the gold strike at Pike's Peak.

CRIME AT CASTAWAY by EDITH BRISTOL

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

The men from the powerhouse came out—only one stayed at his post—as Lance explained what he had come for. We crossed the dam, ran down the sides of the abutments, Lance scrutinizing everything he saw.

"Nothing will show up if the concrete is a weak mixture," he said. "That is, nothing is sure to show up. But one of these days the whole thing will just go out—sweeping down the valley." He waved toward the canyon below us.

It was merely a matter of form that we went over the face of the great structure along its base. There'd be nothing to see, Lance insisted. Going over the dam was just an empty gesture. He felt he must look—he expected to see nothing. Neither did he see.

But at the base of the mammoth wall of concrete, beyond the spillway, near the wing of the abutment, he paused.

"Good lord!" Lance said. "Look up there!"

Above us, seeping from the monster wall in two tiny streams, the water was oozing, such a small trace we could hardly be sure it was there.

"It's begun," Lance said. "It's crumbling from the inside. It will be just a matter of time now—" He looked swiftly around him. "Call the city offices," he said. "Call Allen at the sheriff's office. Then get yourself and the rest of the boys out and up on the high ground above the dam."

They started back for the powerhouse.

"You go to the top of the hills above the dam," he turned to me. "Stick with the engineers—I'm going to ride down the valley and warn the people in the low lands."

"I'm sticking with you, Lance," I said.

Sometimes now I wake up at night with a start.... I hear the hum of a speeding motor.... and feel the throb of the cylinders.... the moon bursts through the clouds and I hear Lance say.... "There's a Mexican family lives over there in the willows...." and again we are off on our ride down the valley of the Gallina.

If Lance had not known the valley, every inch of it, from boyhood, he could never have done it; if he had not covered the road from Gallina to the dam so many times that every foot of it was familiar to him, he could never have known, on our desperate ride, where the settlers lived, where to warn the sleeping families.

But he did know!

"Nobody lives within the first three miles," Lance bit off the words crisply. "That's company land.... we needn't stop till we reach the first road."

There were lights in the first little house—a rough wooden building with young fruit trees planted hopefully about it. Lance swung his rooster into the doorway, leaned on the horn and a man came to the doorway. I could see his outline, a dark silhouette in the yellow of the lamplight.

"The dam's going, Mike! Get your things together! Make for the hills as fast as you can!"

Mike stood dazed. "What's that you say?"

Two children, little tow-heads, came and thrust their small bodies between their father and the frame of the door. "He says the dam is going...." he says the dam is going....

They began to cry and I saw a woman gather them into her arms.

Lance swung his car around. "Step on it, Mike! The water's coming out from the east end now!"

We were off.

We watched every intersecting road. Sometimes it was only a rough trail through the sandy floor of the valley. But no matter how slight the roadway, Lance turned in and swept like the night wind to the little house at its end. Every shack and cabin. Sometimes it was only a canvas tent—the same warning sounded as he blasted into his horn and yelled:

"Hello, there, inside! The dam is going out! Get to high ground as fast as you can!"

Sometimes a light flashed inside the house before he finished his warning; sometimes we heard a scramble in the darkness and the barking of dogs followed as we sped away.

The valley was narrow for the first five or six miles, more like a canyon between the hills.

If the canyon had been wide, if it had been thickly settled, no night would have been long enough for Lance to have ridden its full length. Every detour from the main road took time—much time. I saw Lance look at his wrist watch and bite his lips. I knew he was wondering whether we could keep ahead of the flood that was on the way.

Once he spoke of Walter Gregg, sadness and bitterness mingled: "If Uncle Walter had lived until this night he would have died of a broken heart." He set his square chin. "This was his work, this dam. He was so proud of it. He watched it like a mother watches a child as long as he was on the job. It was only after he was hurt that this could have happened to it. I'll build another one." He said, after a few minutes as we sped through the cool darkness: "I'll build a dam with no Craven around to destroy my work!"

At the "Y" of the road there was a little settlement.

"There's a telephone here," Lance said. "We can call for help and see if the warning came through from the powerhouse."

Lights twinkled in the little houses of the settlement—a garage, a lunch counter, a few cabins. Men were piling bedding and boxes on their automobiles. Women were gathering up their household goods—children whimpered.

"No need to ask," Lance commented as we swung into the settlement. "They got the message."

We stopped long enough to get some gas, then drove on.

Now the moon came out. Over the top of the hills to the south, its first pale beams mounted, gilding the stark branches of the sycamores, turning the sand of the valley floor to snow. Short black shadows lengthened into longer lines as the moon climbed higher above the hills. The stars paled and went away. The white ribbon of the valley highway unrolled before us. There were no houses here for several miles, but off to the side of the canyon we could see a cluster of trees and a house.

Lance slackened speed, lifting his foot from the throttle. I could see he was measuring—how much time it would take to run across to the house on the side of the canyon?

"God help them!" he said. "They've got to take their chance. They're fairly high up. The water may not come that high. I've got to stick by the folks on the floor of the valley."

Now we crossed the highway that led into Gallina. We could see no lights, but Lance waved one hand in a general direction off toward the north.

"Gallina is over there—if the message came through from the power house there should be a posse of men out by now, ready to help—although the Lord only knows how you can stand off a wall of water!"

From here on, the valley widened perceptibly. There were fewer houses. The roads that branched from our main road were further

U. S. Officers Learn Commando Work First Hand

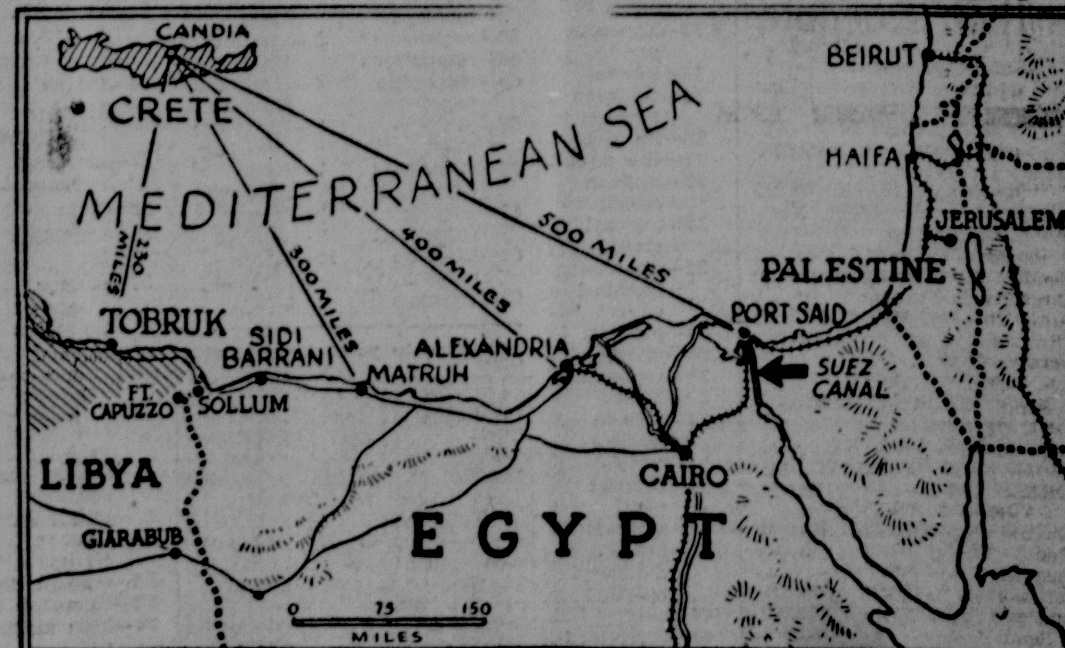

U. S. officers now are training at a British battle school in Northern Ireland where they are learning, first-hand, the tactics of the famed Commando troops. Later, the U. Where Nazis May Land Parachutists in Egypt

Shown on this map are some of the key points where the Nazi military leaders may try to land parachutists in Egypt. Hordes of chutists might come from Crete, or from Tobruk where they are said to have participated in the capture of that fortress. Axis forces, according to military experts, are expected to attack the British at once, before they can properly organize their new defense positions in Egypt.

Phalanx Bows To News After Scoring Win Over Jacksons

PHILLIS TURNS IN FOUR-HIT TRIUMPH OVER PHALANX, 2-1

Hahn Becomes Circuit's Hard-Luck Hurler. Loses Hard Ones

Although held to four hits by the youthful Wayne Hahn, the Phalanx tripped Jacksons at Centennial park last night by a count of 3-2. Bill Shepard, Phalanx moundsman, gave up seven hits but kept them well scattered.

The Phalanx sewed up the tussle in the fifth frame when they showed across two tallies to increase their lead to 3-0. These runs offset "Toots" Hrvatin's circuit clout with a man aboard in the following stanza. Scullion, Workman and Hrvatin reeled off a twin killing to feature the close game.

Carl Capel and Hrvatin each smashed out two safeties to lead the futile seven-hit attack off the slants of Shepard while no member of the Phalanx got more than one hit off Hahn. The loss was the third straight for Jacksons after blasting the United Cigars in a lopsided game a few weeks ago. The win was the second of the round for the fraternities.

The Salem News jumped on Bill Theiss for two runs in the first inning as the Nevilles scored a 2-1 triumph over the Phalanx in the nightcap. Meanwhile, the Phalanx was unable to do much with the tantalizing offerings of Ralph Phillips, who was touched for only four safe blows.

A dropped pop fly played a big part in the News' two-run spree in the first after Julius Falk had singled and Theiss had walked "Wink" Miller. The Phalanx scored its lone run in the sixth after being held hitless until the fifth frame when Sammy Drakulich pulled up at first after hitting a short drive into left-center which Falk, Bill Kerr and Bill Pauline let drop among them.

Bill Kerr enjoyed his first good night of the season as he collected two hits in three trips to the plate to pace the News attack. Phillis pitched his usual good game and had the situation well in hand at all times. He gave up but four hits of which no individual collected more than one.

GOOSE EGG SPECIALIST — By Jack Sords

SO FAR THIS YEAR COOPER HAS BLANKED THE DODGERS AND GIANTS TWICE AND THE REDS ONCE.

THREE DEADLOCKED FOR MAHONING LEAD

GIRARD, June 27—What began as pre-tournament speculation moved into the realm of possibility today—that the world record 264 for major league golf competition might be tied or bettered in the second $5,000 Mahoning Valley Open.

Mahoning's revamped par of 34-34 took a merry beating in the first 18 holes yesterday, the lead going to three campaigners who were four under regulation figures—Horton Smith of Pinehurst, N. C.; Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot artist from Abingdon, Pa., and Sam Byrd, the ex-Yankee outfielder from Ardmore, Pa.

They worked their way to the clubhouse with identical rounds of 33-31—64 to lead the field of 179, making the odds none too prohibitive on the chances of trimming the market set by Craig Wood at Bloomfield, N. J., in winning the metropolitan open of 1940.

In the second spot at 65 a young local pro, Jack Miskell, was tied with Lloyd Mangrum of Oakmont, Pa. Miskell shot 32-33 and Mangrum 34-31.

BROCKTON, Mass.—Mrs. Charlotte Dearn celebrated her 74th birthday by completing the 200th hole in the last year and a half.

PASADENA, Cal.—Pasadena's famous rose industry has launched an entirely new rose to be known as the Douglas MacArthur Rose.

Ralph Davis and E. Davis each clubbed out three blows to lead the winners' attack while Zimmerman poled out a homer and a double in three trips to the plate.

Roberts scored what proved to be the winning runs in the third inning. Three runs scored after that were just surplus. De Rienzios scored one in the second and another in the seventh for their only scores.

BROOKLYN MAKING RUNAWAY OF N. L. RACE; YANKS BOW

Dodgers Stretch Margin To 9½; Bosox Trail Yanks 6½

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

It may not be a tipoff on the world series, the outcome of the pennant races, or even the coming all-star game, but the Brooklyn Dodgers have replaced the New York Yankees as the runaway team of the major leagues.

Overlooked by many fans in the excitement of all-star picking time, the transition of recent days has left the Dodgers with a National league lead three games longer than the Yankees enjoyed in the American loop.

The Dodgers stretched their margin to nine and a half games, their longest of the year, yesterday by clipping the Cincinnati Reds, 5-4, in 10 innings. Joe Medwick went hitless to end his hitting streak at 27 games.

And in a night game at Chicago, the Yankees bowed to the White Sox, 4-2. That reversal, coupled with the Boston Red Sox triumph over Cleveland, chopped another full game off the Yankee lead, leaving the world champs only six and a half games ahead of Boston. Boston beat Cleveland, 3 to 2.

Al Benton tossed a six-hitter at the Philadelphia Athletics as Pinky Higgins chipped in with two doubles to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 3-1 victory.

The St. Louis Browns halted a four-game losing streak by rapping Buck Newson and the Washington Senators, 8-5, in a night game as Chet Laabs and Harold Clift drove in three runs apiece.

Cliff Melton notched his ninth win compared with five losses by holding the Pittsburgh Pirates to a half-dozen safeties and contributed further to the 4-2 New York Giant victory by bagging two of his team's six hits. Five Buc errors helped the New Yorkers.

Jimmy Fox clouted his first home run since switching to the National league, a two-run blast with two out in the ninth inning to give the Chicago Cubs a 6-4 decision over the Boston Braves. Home runs by Max West and Paul Waner kept the Braves in the game.

The St. Louis Cardinals' night contest with the tail-end Philadelphia Phils was postponed.

DE RIENZOS LOSE TO ROBERTS, 7-2

Roberts backed up Anderson's three-hit pitching job with a 13-hit attack and a 7-2 win over De Rienzios in a game played at Centennial park yesterday.

Ralph Davis and E. Davis each clubbed out three blows to lead the winners' attack while Zimmerman poled out a homer and a double in three trips to the plate.

Roberts scored what proved to be the winning runs in the third inning. Three runs scored after that were just surplus. De Rienzios scored one in the second and another in the seventh for their only scores.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS TAKE UP AVIATION

(By United Press)
NEW YORK — About 500,000 boys and girls—between 16 and 18 years old—will study aviation as well as history and geography when they return to high school in September.

Meteorology, air navigation, communications, aerodynamics, engine design and structure are some of the subjects that will absorb the young minds of America.

Pre-flight training for secondary school consumption is part of a nationwide program sponsored by the Air Training Corps of America. This organization, working in conjunction with the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the U. S. Office of Administration, will grant college credits to those boys who join ATCA units.

Fundamental Aviation is so new in high school curricula that even the teachers have to learn about it. Teachers' College of Columbia university is offering a special series of summer courses for those who would instruct America's future fliers. Courses begin July 7 and terminate Aug. 14.

ROBERTS SCORE 9-8 WIN IN "B" PLAYOFF

Scoring the winning run in the ninth and final frame, Roberts halted Mullins in the Class B first round playoff, 9-8, yesterday at Centennial park. The loss was the second straight for Mullins.

The Mullins outfit took a head start in the second inning when they bunched a few of their 10 hits off Bill Ritchie to tally four runs. They added three more in the third and it looked as though the first round title was in the bag for the shopmen.

The Roberts team was far from licked, however, and came back strong in the fourth inning. They blasted George DeCrow's offerings all over the lot for eight runs and the lead. Mullins tied up the count in the last half of the same chapter and the score remained that way until broken in the ninth by Roberts.

The win was the sixth straight for Roberts.

Forest Service Develops Tree Planting Machine

WASHINGTON — A wood-sized forest can be planted with the Agriculture department's new tree-planting machine in one day.

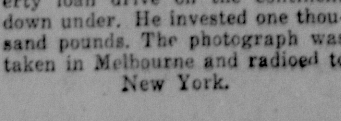

Forestry Service experts, who have been experimenting with the tractor-drawn device for three years, say it will plant 3,000 trees and shrubs in an eight-hour day.

The machine is similar to a vegetable plant sower, except that it is on a larger scale.

BRAZIL BUILDING AVIATOR RESERVE

National Campaign Well Under Way To Popularize Flying

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 24.—The national campaign to popularize flying in Brazil, begun 18 months ago by assis Chateaubland, president of the Diarios Associados, is rapidly building up a reserve of aviators to match a young but growing aircraft industry.

Since the publisher, who controls 16 of Brazil's newspapers, started his drive, 326 aviation clubs have been established, two in Rio de Janeiro and the others in 324 cities and towns throughout the country.

Brazil is turning out planes from three factories and equipping them with motors made in a government plant to complete a Brazilian-designed and Brazilian-constructed airplane.

Light trainers and pleasure craft are made at the island plant of Henrique Lage enterprises near Rio, and powered with motors from a national factory in the southern state of Santa Catarina. In addition a Brazilian army plant builds two Waco-type trainers and a naval plant is constructing light twin-engined bombers, modified from original German designs for the plane and British designs for the motors.

The aviation clubs have a membership of about 10,000. Each club has a trained instructor and every member is eligible to become a civilian pilot. Expenses of training and flights are kept as low as possible. About 600 pilots have already been trained.

Most of the clubs have their own fields and hangar facilities, constructed and paid for by the local membership, sometimes assisted by municipal governments.

The planes are donated by citizens and groups.
